TUB DOCKING STATION

for installing freestanding bathtubs

INSTALLS MADE EASIER.

THE OLD WAY

Must tilt tub on side and lift to connect tailpiece - increases risk of scratches and cracks

High damage risk when lifting and lowering tub to install

Lifting and lowering installation requires more labor and adds cost to project

Impossible to snake without removing tub completely to gain access

DOCKING STATION WAY

No tilting or lifting required to attach tailpiece before placing tub - decreases risk of scratches and cracks

Low damage risk because no lifting or lowering required for tub installation

Sliding tub into place to install requires less labor and helps control cost of project

Removable clicker drain allows easy access to snake drain and clear clogs

EZ-Click™ drain is included and available in multiple finishes

PRESIDENT'S THOUGHTS

by Mike Ehret
Illinois PHCC President

In continuing on the subject of recruiting new people into the PHCC and in leadership roles, this issue is also evident in overall membership in our trade. We are all experiencing a worker shortage and need more workers than we can get. Especially workers that can move up through the ranks in our companies to become foremen, superintendents and eventually, owners of our companies.

We, as an industry, have somehow not attracted the young, bright people we need in these roles. There are generational gaps in our workforce that have had and will continue to have an effect on our ability to grow our companies, our state association and our industry. We need to get these young individuals interested in high school, before they have decided on other career paths to pursue. While older individuals are always welcomed, we need to see those as an additional bonus, and focus our core workforce coming from graduating high school seniors entering our trade.

Our companies need to become more involved in the area high school vocational programs and school job fairs to show these younger generations what an attractive career they can have with us.

Thanks for reading,

Mike

Will a Billion Dollar Disaster Affect Your Business?

When it comes to weather and climate disasters, the clock is ticking. As the likelihood of a major climate event impacting your business surges higher each year, disaster recovery planning is critical.

In 2022, the U.S. experienced 18 separate weather or climate disasters that resulted in at least $1 billion each in damages.¹

It had the eighth most disaster-related fatalities for the contiguous U.S. since 1980, with 474 direct or indirect fatalities.¹

Damages from the 2022 disasters totaled $165.1 billion, and the combined cost from events of this caliber over the past 10 years totals $1.1 trillion from 152 separate billion-dollar events.¹

Your business is essential. Take action now.

Should a climate or weather disaster strike, your employees and customers need you to reopen as soon as possible. You are essential to your community's recovery efforts, so take action now.

- Know your risks. Find and review your county's hazard analysis or disaster mitigation plan to understand what events impact your geographic area.
- Develop a plan to respond to each of the identified risks.
- Your plan should take into account your business's essential operations, employees, equipment, suppliers, technology, and finance needs.

Inflation and supply chain issues are rapidly increasing the cost of rebuilding following a disaster. Review your policy limits and talk with your marketing representative to help ensure that you have the proper coverage in place to fully recover from a climate or weather disaster.
